County to pay $250,000 to advertise lack of funds

By MATT COOPER
The Register-Guard

Lane County will spend up to $250,000 this year publicizing its tight financial picture, in hopes that voters in November will approve higher taxes for public-safety services.

It's an amount for county spending on publicity that has been unparalleled in at least the past 10 years. And it illustrates the seriousness of the effort to persuade voters

Caskets found as workers demolish mausoleum

We had no idea anyone was buried there.

By William H. Williams

When a mausoleum is demolished, it is a common sight to see workers in hard hats and safety vests, a security guard here and there, and a few onlookers.

There is nothing like the discovery of the mausoleum built by the century railroad magnate, Barney Leiter, and his wife, the late Mrs. Leiter.

Demolition workers who were busy with the job of demolishing the mausoleum, which was built by Barney Leiter and his wife, the late Mrs. Leiter, in 1917, in the city of Baltimore, Md., were surprised to find the remains of the mausoleum.

The remains of the mausoleum were found in the basement of the building, which was built by Barney Leiter and his wife, the late Mrs. Leiter, in 1917, in the city of Baltimore, Md.

"We had no idea anyone was buried there," explained Thomas Egan, director of construction for the demolition contractor.

"The mausoleum was built in 1917, and we had no idea anyone was buried there," he said. "We had no idea anyone was buried there, and we had no idea anyone was buried there."

"It had an interior vaulting and a high vaulted ceiling, and because of the way it was built, it was very strong. It was built by Barney Leiter and his wife, the late Mrs. Leiter, in 1917, in the city of Baltimore, Md.

Barney Leiter, although he ultimately was a man of means, left the mausoleum for himself, but he did not want to be buried in the mausoleum.

One of Leiter's relatives, Leo Leiter, died in 1917, and his remains were buried in the mausoleum in the city of Baltimore, Md.

Utah Poison Control Center reminds everyone not to take poison

"Children Act Fast, So Do Poisons" is the theme for National Poison Prevention Week, arch 20 - 26. The Utah Poison Control Center (UPCC) would like to take the opportunity to remind parents and caregivers that poisonings can be prevented. In 2004, the Utah Poison Control Center responded to over 50,000 calls, the majority of which were about actual potential poisonings.

Over 60 percent of the potential poisoning exposures involved children under age 6. The top five substances that children in this age group are most likely to ingest or take are:

- * Avoid taking medicine in front of children.
- * Never refer to medicine as candy.

- * Clean your medicine cabinet periodically, safely disposing of unneeded and outdated medicines.

The UPCC, part of the College of Pharmacy, has an active community outreach program. In 2004, representatives of the Utah Poison Control Center provided 126 community presentations and distributed more than 40,000 poison prevention education materials.

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Police searching a downtown home found a man hiding 15 plastic bags of crack cocaine in his buttocks.

Pierre Lynch, 20, of Washington, D.C., was searched after he went to a home on Charles Street Thursday night.

Police had gone to the home after officers saw suspected drug dealing in the area, Sgt. Jim Robison said.

■ Dog attack — Lower Duck Pond, Lithia Park, Ashland. Police responded to a report of two dogs running loose and attacking ducks at about 11:20 a.m. Sunday.

The officer cited a resident for the loose dogs. The duck refused medical treatment and left the area, according to police records.

■ Jail releases — Jackson

Police checked the area and found an open door in the back of the building. An officer went inside and called out, "Marco."

The man's name was not Marco, detective Tim Dohr said. Instead, "the officer was trying to inject some humor into the situation."

Police found the suspect after he responded, "Polo."
